The Lehigh Valley Chapter of ASM International is pleased to announce the 2009 Materials Industry Exposition being held at the Holiday Inn and Conference Center on the evening of Thursday October 8th, 2009 in Breinigsville, PA. The first Expo in 2007 brought together over 125 attendees and 16 exhibitors. Vendors at this year's Expo are expected to again be made up of manufacturing industry representatives and research and economic development institutions. The Expo will have an open invitation to guests and will include ASM community members as well as members from the region's manufacturing community and the Lehigh Valley Engineering Council.

The Materials Information Society

ASM International

ASM International continues to be the primary information society that disseminates knowledge of materials to engineers, designers, and manufacturing personnel. The Lehigh Valley represents one of 100 chapters around the world and is committed to strengthening the manufacturing capability of the region.

Be an Exhibitor

Exhibitors are welcome to present their company's products and services in an intimate atmosphere with members of the manufacturing community. If you are interested in reserving a booth at the Expo, please contact:
